School Switchover Goes Smoothly

CENTER SCHOOL TRANSFER SMOOTH

by Barbara Likowski

Attendance was about normal at Center School for the opening day of the switch-over according to Robert Ellis, principal who was pleased at the smoothness. Buses were running ahead of schedule, and arrived shortly before 8:45 a.m. The transition went very smoothly which Ellis attributed to the fine work done by administrators, staff, and communities. Volunteer parents from both schools were on hand the first two days to help, but were not needed after that. Parents also rode the buses the first day.

New at Center is a breakfast program for all children who qualify.

At the present time Ellis does not expect to lose any teachers. Staff reorganization has been necessary, however, since the children entering Center are not in the same proportion as those leaving. Instead of three first grades and two second grades, Center now has two and a half first grades and two and a half second grades indicating a combined class for first and second grades. There are also three fourth grades and two fifth grades instead of the previous two and a half fourth grades and two and a half fifth grades.

John Carroll Elementary

by Kathrine Gough

Opening day for Greenbelt children attending John Carroll was a smooth, "no tears" operation, according to principal Gretta Henry.

Children were sent name tags by the North End and Center principals. Each grade's tags were a different color. Children were called off the bus by grades and met by teacher aides and student volunteers. As they got off the bus they were given metal bus number tags which they gave to their new teachers upon entering class. The teacher returned the number tags at the end of the day so each child was sure to return to the right bus. Every child was in his proper class within 15 minutes.

Several Greenbelt parents were helping in an official capacity with the transition. A few more anxious mothers came in the morning to make sure everything was all right.

Most of the children have already been permanently assigned to classes, based on school feeder cards and assessments from their former teachers. A small number will be shifted during the next few days. A reading team will be re-evaluating the students to determine the direction of materials. Transfer of materials from former schools has not yet been completed.

Mrs. Henry was pleased with attendance the first day and expects it to climb still more during the week.

Parents are invited to attend a meeting at Carroll on Mon., Feb. 5, at 7:30 to discuss the open space classroom program. The school is hoping to expand it to include more students.

Springhill Lake and Oakcrest

by Muriel Weidenfeld

Fifty or sixty children waiting at the bus stop in Springhill Lake on Monday morning, gave a rousing cheer when their bus came into view. The reason had nothing to do with desegregation or busing. The icy, windy weather made the school bus a welcome sight.

It's business as usual at Springhill Lake Elementary and Oakcrest Elementary. Children are growing accustomed to their new classmates and, in many cases, new schools and teachers. It is expected by the end of this week any bus schedule problems will be worked out.

A Springhill Lake parent group is exploring the prospect for installing seatbelts and additional padding on the backs of seats of school buses.

North End Transfer Smooth

Roberta McNamara

According to Helene Poland, principal of North End, "Everything went beautifully" on January 29 when 130 John Carroll students transferred to the school. The absentee rate was normal for January and the day could be characterized as an "ordinary school day". One John Carroll parent accompanied each of the three buses which took the children to North End School and three Boxwood parents accompanied that subdivision's children to John Carroll.

North End's enrollment went down from 496 to 404, causing a loss of two teachers. Mrs. Poland indicated that there was no overcrowding in any of the classes.

MONDAY AT BETHUNE

by Joel Kastner

At Mary Bethune Jr. High School on Jan. 29, all went well. The bus ride was long but fast, and confusion was at a minimum. No disturbances were reported at the school, and most students got into the routine quickly.

Seventh grade students went to the multipurpose room where they were assigned homerooms. Ninth graders went through the same procedure at the gym, while eighth graders reported directly to homerooms, according to lists posted around the building. This observer's classes were generally smaller than at Greenbelt Jr. High.

Junior High & High Schools

by Elaine Skolnik

Monday, January 29, was very much like the opening day of a new school year for Parkdale Senior High School, Mary Bethune Junior High and Greenbelt Junior High. Other than the confusion of schedules having to be adjusted, the transition was smooth and without disruption. Some students expressed disappointment when they did not get the exact subjects they desired.

At Parkdale, where the enrollment is about 2,450, the absentee rate was slightly higher than the normal 10% at this time of the year. On Monday, some 1,800 students reported and on Tuesday the total attendance was 2,000. Principal G. Allen Sager said that the students "seem to be getting along very well, just like before." He expressed his gratitude to those students and to others — especially Greenbelter Mrs. Ruth Bond — who were "so helpful in lending this project positive support." Dr. Sager also stated, "We in the public school system wish to thank the parents — we know that many did not like it, but they obeyed the law, and came through with flying colors."

Thomas A. Myrick, principal of Bethune, where 398 Greenbelters have been transferred, was very pleased with the way things were going at the school. He reported that, while individual schedule changes will be necessary, the overall scheduling was satisfactory. There were also minimal bus problems. The basketball and wrestling teams are already working together and an activities bus will be running as soon as a driver is hired. Attendance at the school on Monday and Tuesday was about normal.

Myrick said the parent volunteers were "beautiful" and he wants to thank personally everyone who "cooperated and assisted him in every way they could."

As in other schools, there were

"bugs" in the scheduling at Greenbelt Junior High on the first day. "Due to the time-element involved, we probably had more 'rough spots' than are usually found at a September school opening," said vice-principal Thomas Ullrich. The absentee rate, which was about 20% on Monday, fell to 10% on Tuesday. Springhill Lake students are attending GJH.

Ullrich said that the students seem to be accepting the change and noted that most of the incoming students, who had been attending smaller schools, were finding their way around the many-leveled GJH without too much difficulty. He praised the efforts of the parent volunteers who helped in so many ways at the school.

"Hot Item" on Hot Line . . .

This week the city operated a hot line for parents whose children were attending Mary Bethune Jr. High for the first time. The purpose of the line was to inform parents of any problems at the school or to stop rumors. The city reported that they received only one phone call — from a parent concerned over whether his child should bring his gym shorts to school.

GDC TO RAISE APARTMENT RENTS, ENDORSE NEWS REVIEW SPACE USE

by Al Skolnik

An increase of 10 percent in the rents for the Parkway apartments was voted on January 25 by the board of directors of Greenbelt Development Corporation, wholly-owned subsidiary of Greenbelt Homes, Inc. The increase will go into effect on March 1. A $2 a month increase in GDC garage rents was also voted. An earlier increase of 3% voted in November never had gone into effect because rent controls had allowed only one increase per year.

The increase was needed because of rising costs and the need for providing money for depreciation of the property. As it is, according to manager Roy Breashears, the 10-percent increase will only provide a partial funding of depreciation. He also noted that the ranges and refrigerators are now over 12 years old and a new replacement program will need to be instituted in the near future.

News Review Space

In a related matter, the GDC board reaffirmed the wishes of the membership, as expressed by a 380 to 10 vote at the 1963 annual membership meeting, to continue to make available to the Greenbelt News Review unused basement space, with the newspaper reimbursing the corporation for any out-of-pocket expenses.

Opposing votes were cast by directors Tony Lynch, Tom White, and Howard Brooks. Lynch said that while he recognized that the News Review was a non-profit volunteer organization and provided a service to the community, he felt that the financial straits of GDC were such that some rent should be charged for the space. The News Review, he said, could pass the increase along by raising advertising rates.

Lynch also said that the space was not as bad as he had been led to believe. He noted that there were actually some water and sewage pipes that one could walk under without bumping his head.

White, while acknowledging that the space was not habitable, said that the space must be worth something to somebody and did not feel that GDC should be in the business of providing a "subsidy" to anyone.

Several persons denied, in effect, that a subsidy was involved, observing that the services provided by the News Review to GHI far exceeded in value any rent that could possibly be charged for the space. Katherine Keene noted that the News Review, by providing full coverage of GHI board meetings and events, saves the corporation many dollars each year that otherwise would be spent in the preparation and mailing of additional GHI News Letters. She also noted that

Police Will Monitor

School Zone Speeding

A recently completed traffic study for the City pointed out that the 15 MPH speed limits in school zones, designated by yellow flashing lights, are not being complied with. The study noted that while there was some reduction in speed when the lights were activated, speeds were nevertheless considerably in excess of the 15 MPH limit.

As a result of the study, Greenbelt police will increase their monitoring of vehicle speeds in school zones, particularly at those times when the flashing lights are activated. Radar will be used to insure that the posted speeds are adhered to.

Resident's Urged to Call

For Free Heart Check-up

Beginning Monday, February 5 through Wednesday, February 14, the Heart Association of Southern Maryland, in conjunction with the City of Greenbelt and Prince Georges County, will be conducting free heart screening tests to determine possible heart disease. The tests will be conducted at the Ridge Road Recreation Center from 3:30 to 9:30 p.m., Monday through Friday and 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. on Saturday and Sunday.

Highlighting the importance of this program will be the attendance of County Executive William Gullett along with members of the County Council, the Mayor and members of the Greenbelt City Council, who will be at the Center the News Review has an open policy of publishing letters to the editor from GHI members, whereas the GHI News Letter does not.

White replied that these benefits accrue to GHI, not GDC, but it was pointed out that this all washes out in the end since GHI is the sole stockholder of GDC.

GHI Board Meeting

At the GHI board meeting which followed the GDC meeting, the main area of discussion concerned the special membership meeting scheduled for last night. At issue was whether the cost of the special mailing and the membership card lists requested by the nominations and elections committee should be charged against the account known as "membership meetings" or against the special budget of the nominations and elections committee. The latter committee has a special budgeted item of $600 in this year's budget for the first time.

Directors Lynch and Brooks felt that the cost of these two actions should be charged against the "membership meetings" account, because otherwise the nominations committee might run over its budget for the remainder of the year. The effect would be, in Brooks' words, to "throttle the committee," an attitude which White felt more properly characterized Brooks' own action of the week before when he opposed the routine authorization of expenditure of any funds for 1973.

In the course of the argument Lynch also charged that the management was dragging its heels on complying with the nominations committee request for compilation of a membership card list. Breashears hotly denied this, repeatedly saying that all he wanted to know was which account the cost should be charged against.

The board finally, by a 7 to 2 vote, agreed to charge both items against the budget of the nominations committee, partly on the grounds that these items were ones that the nominations committee had especially requested and were not absolutely essential for the conduct of the special membership meeting. The board made clear, however, that it will give full consideration to requests of the committee for additional funds if it runs over the budget in the remainder of the year.

Denial of Free Speech

To the Editor:

No news account of the Largo Sports Arena trial is complete without detailing the circumstances that led to the contempt of court charge against Rhea Cohen.

Before ending the trial, Maryland Circuit Court Judge Bowen asked if anyone had anything to add to the record. Accepting this invitation, Mrs. Cohen approached the bench and quietly said she wished to read an affidavit of Bias and Prejudice, an appropriate procedure for asking a presiding judge to disqualify himself. After reading the document, she politely referred to her previous day's conversation with Maryland's Chief Judge, who had mentioned a plaintiff's right to file such a motion. Without ever interrupting or warning her, Judge Bowen declared her in contempt. After detaining Mrs. Cohen for several hours in the sheriff's office, the judge passed the excessive sentence of 90 days in jail and a $500 fine.

As one of the plaintiffs, I shared Mrs. Cohen's feeling that the trial was unfair for several reasons. The marathon endurance contest taxed our lawyer and witnesses; court was held from early morning until late at night and into the weekend. Evidence and testimony essential to our case were rejected. The judge jeopardized the ongoing petition drive by wrongly stating in open court on December 13 that two Prince Georges County laws affecting the arena are not subject to referendum. One law gives $2 million in public funds for roads and sewers for the arena; the other rezones public land for private commercial recreation development. Despite the setback, the petition campaign continues.

In an interview after the trial, Judge Bowen was quoted as saying that Mrs. Cohen's conduct "tends to bring the entire judicial system into contempt and constitutes a clear and present danger to the administration of justice."

This mild-mannered mother of three children who read a court motion threatens no judicial system. However, she is active in environmental and taxpayers' issues, and challenges the moneyed interests that control politicians and officials who prefer secret deals to public proceedings.

Denial of a leading conservationist's rights of free speech and due process endangers everyone's liberty. Unless this contempt case is won on appeal, all concerned citizens could be intimidated by an arbitrary judicial process.

Tax deductible contributions to the Rhea Cohen Defense Fund are now being collected by the Environmental Action Foundation, Inc., 1346 Connecticut Ave., NW, Washington, DC, 20036. Managed by a board of trustees from the Prince George's and Montgomery Environmental Coalitions, the Fund will help pay legal costs for the appeal. Everyone's rights, not only Mrs. Cohen's, are on trial in this case.

ATTICK PTA SPEAKER

The February meeting of Center School P-TA will take place on Tuesday, February 6 and will be the first such meeting in which parents of Center School students from Landover will participate. The meeting will provide an opportunity for such parents to get acquainted with "old-time" members of the P-TA and with teachers of the school. It will feature an open house and an expanded social hour, beginning at 7:30 p.m., in the auditorium of Center School.

The featured speaker for the evening will be Albert ("Buddy") Attick, Public Works Director for the City of Greenbelt, who will tell about "Early Days of Greenbelt and of Center School." Buddy grew up on a farm on land which later became part of the city. He remembers taking part in the building of Greenbelt and will reminisce about the days when Center School was brand new and the trees around it were mere saplings.

The members will also elect a nominating committee for P-TA board elections, which have been advanced this year due to the school switchover. Because many new members are expected to join Center School PTA during the evening, a registration desk will be

Benefit Art Auction

The Greenbelt Town and Country School will hold a benefit art auction Saturday evening, February 10 at 8:30 p.m., and Sunday afternoon, February 11, at 2 p.m. Some are originals by such artists as Chagall, Dali, Matisse, Picasso, Renois, and Degas. Exhibition starts one hour before the sale. Admission is free. Catalogs are free. For information call 474-5252.

LWV Meets, Examines COG

The Metropolitan Washington Council of Governments will be examined at the February 8 evening meeting of the Greenbeltville Unit of the Prince Georges County League of Women Voters. This study of COG is the second part of a two-year study of Regional Governance by the League of Women Voters of the National-Capital Area. The Greenbeltville Unit meets at 8 p.m. in the Music Room of the Greenbelt Center School.

In addition to discussing methods of funding a regional governance, election of some regional officials to a regional governance, and the role of citizen participation in such a governance, the League members will reach consensus on questions regarding COG as it presently exists.

New Md. Drivers' License

Maryland drivers licenses now have a new look and contain many security features not available in the old license.

This action was taken to combat the growing problem that Motor Vehicle Administration and law enforcement agencies are encountering with counterfeit licenses.

The new license, although similar in size and shape to the old, uses fluorescent printing, raised images, and sensitive inks. Background inks for the documents are all in off-shades, which are virtually impossible to match; and the inks are resistant to alteration. Their sensitivity to chemicals reveals any attempt to alter or remove written or printed information.

The new licenses will be issued to all new drivers and all motorists whose licenses are renewed in 1973. The new licenses will be phased in over a two-year period, and during that time, the old-style license will remain valid until the indicated expiration date.

Center School Open House

by Barbara Likowski

Over 250 parents, children and teachers from John Carroll and Center schools participated in an Open House at Center School on Wednesday night, January 24.

Visiting families were met in the gym by teachers and previously assigned host families from Center, and were taken on a tour of the school. Refreshments were served in the library.

Returning to the gym, the guests were welcomed by Robert Ellis, principal, who introduced Mayor Richard Pilski and members of City Council, and Center PTA officers whose children are remaining at Center.

Mayor Pilski assured the parents that their children would be safe in Greenbelt and would be treated "like our own children" while they are here.

Recreation Review

In order to facilitate the Heart Disease Screening Project, programs scheduled at the Ridge Road Center have been transferred to the Youth Center from Feb. 1 to Feb. 15. For further information on programs call 474-6878. For information regarding the Project call Leo Gerton, 474-9589.

Garden Design Class

The Rec. Dept. is offering a seven week Garden Design class, beginning Feb. 13, in which participants will work on a landscape plan for their home garden, completing a layout and choosing the plants and structural materials to be used. Classes will be offered Tuesday afternoons, with babysitting, from 1:30-2:30, and Tuesdays nights from 8-9 p.m. For further details contact Mrs. Joanne Volk, instructor, 474-2406 or the Rec. Dept., 474-6878. Mrs. Volk, an architect, lives in Greenbelt and has designed some Greenbelt gardens including her own at 17-G Ridge. Register at the Youth Center 9-4 pm, Monday thru Friday, before February 12.

CITY NOTES

The city now officially owns the 12 acres of the Springhill Lake golf course as the deed for the property has now been recorded. The city expects to build a recreational building on the land. An official ceremony is planned at a date to be decided.

A bricklayer has been contacted concerning the placement of a city map at the entrance to the city on Southway Rd. It is proposed that the structure have a brick base and a small roof with the map hanging between two pillars. The city is trying to find white brick which would match or blend with the nearby houses.

Six yellow trash receptacles have been placed at various areas in the city; four near and around the lake, one on Southway near the Co-op gas station and one near the Arco station in Springhill Lake.
